Correction to: BMC Psychology (2022) 10:249

<https://doi.org/10.1186/s40359-022-00954-x>

Following publication of the original article [1], some formatting and data entry errors were identified in Table 10, ‘Correlations between creativity and wellbeing variables’: The p-value for the correlation between overall originality and negative affect should not have been formatted in bold; The p-value for the correlation between OKC raw score and life satisfaction should not have been in bold either; The correlation between OKC raw score and mental health should be -0.024 ; The correlation between negative affect and mental health should be -0.490 .

The table has been corrected in the original article, and a version of the table with the corrections highlighted can be seen in this erratum (Table 10).

The authors thank you for reading and apologise for any inconvenience caused.
